Michael Ellenbogen was diagnosed with younger-onset Alzheimer's disease in 2008 at the age of 49. Prior to his diagnosis, he was a network operations manager for a fortune 500 financial institution. He talks about his life and career up to the point of the diagnosis, his book, "From the Corner Office to Alzheimer's", published in 2013, and the Michael Ellenbogen Movement, <http://www.michaelellenbogenmovement.com/>, which he founded. From his past experience, he describes the first worrying things he noticed and his response to these, his decision to get medical help, and the progress of the dis
